THE LENNON SISTERS

Television history was made in December 1955 when four sisters, aged 9 to 16, debuted on the nationally televised Lawrence Welk Show. The Lennon Sisters were an overnight sensation and became regulars on Welk's show for the next fourteen years before starring in their own TV show. The original four were the eldest in a family of 12 siblings! As one sister would retire to marry and have children, the remaining sisters would sing as a trio or enlist a younger sister to join them. They performed regularly at the Welk Resort in Branson, Missouri before embarking on this much-anticipated first national tour! Join the Lennon Sisters, Kathy, Janet and younger sister Mimi for an afternoon of delightful vocal harmony.

GEORGE JONES - THE LIVING LEGEND IN CONCERT

Through the years, Peabody patrons have been treated to performances by Waylon Jennings, Willie Nelson, and Merle Haggard, but George Jones is making his first ever appearance at The Peabody! Over the last two decades, George Jones has been referred to as "the greatest living country singer." His solo number-one hits total fifteen, but in collaboration with other artists, his hits are an amazing 150 songs! Celebrated by his early fans as hard-drinking and fast-living, Jones now pokes fun at those years, even in his songs. His honors and awards span more than 50 years from "Most Promising New Country Vocalist" in the mid-fifties to a Kennedy Center Honoree in 2008.

NEIL SEDAKA

Neil Sedaka has played a major role in Rock 'n Roll history for over 50 years as a singer and songwriter and shows no signs of slowing down. Classical roots and Julliard piano training shaped many of his early compositions including "Stupid Cupid," a megahit recorded by Connie Francis, "Don't Hide Your Love" recorded by Cher, and "Puppet Man" recorded by Tom Jones. Sedaka convinced RCA that he could record his own music -- the Sedaka hit list was born! The hits he wrote and recorded became "the music of our lives," songs we associate instantly with memories, including "Breaking Up Is Hard to Do," "Calendar Girl," "Happy Birthday Sweet Sixteen," "Oh! Carol" and countless others.
